The scope of the journal entails the publishing of original, previously unpublished research reports, reviews and commentaries on various aspects of the boreal environment and its natural resources. This includes topics ranging from environmental problems, their assessment, understanding and solving, as well as the sustainable use of natural resources. Boreal is interpreted in a wide sense, i.e., including northern polar, subpolar and hemiboreal conditions, biomes or ecosystems.

Please explain shortly below how this paper is connected with the scope of Boreal Environment Research. In addition, include the significance of your manuscript and explain the potential general interest of your work to the readership of the journal.

If English is not your first language, please make sure that the manuscript is checked by a native English speaker, preferably one familiar with the nomenclature used. All manuscripts will be thoroughly checked by someone proficient in English, and returned if found to be linguistically inadequate.

IMPORTANT: It is highly recommended that the manuscript be written as short and succinct as possible. As a guideline, the main manuscript should not exceed the total length of 16 journal pages (incl. references, tables and figures).

To evaluate how many journal pages can result from your manuscript, first remove the tables and pictures from the file and then perform a word count and divide that number by 500 (the average number of words per journal page). In total, the word count should not exceed 8250 words.

It is possible to submit a manuscript exceeding 16 journal pages (e.g., review papers), but a solid justification is required and written in the cover letter to the subject editor. The final decision and the length of the submitted manuscript will be determined by the subject editor.
